THE CHALLENGE

Organizations are facing a transformation of their competitive, economic, and cultural environments. Executives like you must demonstrate the strategic capability and creative leadership necessary to gain the confidence of a changing workforce.

THE PROGRAM

You are invited to join in this state-of-the-industry program designed to prepare you for the challenges you face in today’s business environment. The program is a collaboration of Oklahoma State University, the University of Oklahoma and 14 major state corporations and organizations. It represents a high level of commitment not only from the comprehensive state universities but also from the organizations willing to pursue the development, delivery, and administration of a top-quality educational experience.

A representative from each organization serves on the Executive Education Partnership Advisory Board to ensure that the curriculum and instruction are the most relevant possible. The program draws on faculty from a variety of fields to enhance the business performance and organizational effectiveness of successful business men and women. You are actively involved in your self development throughout this program. Simulations and peer feedback link the learning sessions with decision making and strategic planning in your own organization.

THE BENEFITS

The Executive Education Partnership Program offers the following benefits:

1. An educational experience designed to improve the way you think and make decisions
2. An opportunity for you to exchange ideas and learn new skills in an interactive setting
3. A pooling of resources from OSU and OU to deliver a top-quality program and an advisory board to ensure relevance and quality

PARTICIPANTS—WHO SHOULD ATTEND

The program will be most beneficial for executive and upper-level managers like you who have at least 5 years of management and supervisory experience and who are assuming greater responsibilities. It will be particularly helpful as you confront the challenges of managing multifunctional resources in project implementations and work toward improving your overall leadership effectiveness in strategy execution.

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN

The curriculum of the Executive Education Partnership Program is designed to equip you with the appropriate knowledge and skills to lead in today’s rapidly changing business environment. This program will help you with the following:

1. Broaden your perspective of your role as a manager
2. Build an understanding of the changing structure of your organization to make it more competitive
3. Increase your understanding of the special functions and responsibilities of business in society
4. Improve your analytical and decision-making skills at a strategic level
5. Increase your ability to work effectively through team building
EXECUTIVE’S GUIDE TO MENTORING

Your employee’s productivity is most directly impacted by your ability to mentor him or her. This session will focus on your ability to influence others during discussions, informal negotiations and personal interactions. Learn to break through the barriers that often block your message. You will develop the power necessary to be an effective and well-received messenger, learn to avoid conflicts and confrontations and use bargaining power to your advantage. These goals are achieved by identifying important factors that impact your ability to persuade and connect with others around you.

FROM TRADITIONALS TO GENERATION Z: LEADING GENERATIONS AT WORK

Five generations are converging in the workplace. Examine how the different life experiences of Traditions, Baby Boomers, Generation X, Millennials, and Generation Z create challenges in communicating and collaborating. You will also consider ways to bridge the generational divide.

NEGOTIATIONS

The evidence is clear – top performers have strong negotiation skills. However, the evidence is also clear that great negotiators are made, not born. In this session we will discuss the fundamentals of negotiating such as preferred negotiating styles, our goals, the other party’s underlying needs and interests, and the use of leverage. A simulation will allow attendees to put into practice the skills discussed.

STRATEGIC THINKING: VALUE FOCUSED AND EVIDENCE BASED DECISION MAKING

Both organizations and individuals profit from the ability to create value. Leaders have the ability to make smart decisions, solve problems and maintain profitable relationships. This program focuses on the vital role that mindset and thinking play in the development of these skills. Participants will be encouraged to challenge the status quo and question conventional wisdom. In short, the goal of this session is to help you become conscious of your thought processes and to give you tools and ideas to improve the way you think—to empower you to create more value.

USING EVALUATIONS AND MOTIVATIONAL SKILLS TO CREATE A HIGH PERFORMANCE WORK ENVIRONMENT

It is really quite amazing. Individuals come to work motivated to perform and we always seem to do whatever we can to wring that motivation out of them. We do this by implementing practices which are less than optimal in capitalizing on that motivation. In order to remedy this issue, we must first understand how this happens, what we might do to avoid this problem, and those strategies which will enable us to capitalize on that motivation individuals bring to work. Performance evaluation will be used as an illustration of how we can motivate individuals to become the best contributors possible.

YOUR PERSONAL LEADERSHIP ASSESSMENT REPORT

Aristotle said that “knowing yourself is the beginning of all wisdom,” and indeed the best leaders have a deep and accurate understanding of their own personal strengths and weaknesses. This session builds on the self-assessment you will do before class. During the session you will receive the results, hear the instructor describe what they mean, have time to think about them, and finally share and hear from others about what they mean and how to capitalize on the feedback going forward.
As a participant, you are actively involved in self development throughout this program. Business simulations and peer feedback link the learning sessions with decision making and strategic planning in your organization.

The Executive Education Partnership Program is a customized, executive education program developed with input from the organizations participating as partners. This business/academic partnership allows bridges to be built between the educational and business communities. The program is presented by outstanding faculty, all of whom are widely acknowledged as experts in their respective fields. Senior faculty from the University of Oklahoma and Oklahoma State University—serving as on-site “hosts”—assure continuity and provide extra opportunities for one-on-one consultation with participants.

Quotes from 2018 participants of the Executive Education Partnership Program

“I have appreciated the opportunity to sit under such knowledgeable professors. The information they have shared will be valuable to me in my future career and personal life. This week has been an incredible use of their talents to impart their experiences and information to us."

“I enjoyed working as a team on many activities and had fun while learning. I learned soft skills to help me in my leadership role. The schedule was jam packed with relevant and beneficial information.”

“This program was amazing. It was an encouragement to see other corporations have challenges too, and how we all overcome them. The main take-away I am leaving with is “influence”. I need to be an influence to create a positive culture in everything I do, And I have a bag full of tools now to make that change inside myself!”

“I have attended countless leadership development programs, but none compared to this program. The caliber of speaker’s information, and amazing organization of this program cannot be beat. I am energized to return to work after this program. “
