CHRIS WALLACE

AWARD-WINNING VETERAN
JOURNALIST AND HOST OF FOX
NEWS SUNDAY

CHRIS WALLACE | As one of the country's most seasoned journalists, Chris Wallace draws from his decades at the news desk to deliver valuable insight and perspective on the unprecedented election that put Trump in the White House, what America will look like under our 45th president and what business organizations and individuals can expect during his administration. With an expert's eye and a historian's perspective, Wallace illustrates various potential scenarios to provide audiences with a more in-depth understanding of how to prepare for the future. From the federal deficit to healthcare reform and tax cuts to international trade, Wallace breaks down the day's headlines and news stories impacting individuals and industry with the clarity and distinction that have established him as a go-to source for the most important political issues of today and tomorrow. Wallace also offers behind-the-scenes anecdotes about Washington and perspective on the critical and evolving role of the media in the national dialogue.

CENTER FOR EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

The OSU Center for Executive and Professional Development (CEPD) in the Spears School of Business fulfills compelling executive, management and professional educational needs to business and industry. For over 60 years CEPD has played a vital role in Oklahoma's economic growth by offering over 200 programs to more than 14,500 individuals annually. These programs include public and on-site executive and professional development programs and conferences, retreat and conference planning. The seminars are reflective of the seven departments in the Spears School of Business: accounting, economics and legal studies in business, entrepreneurship, finance, management, management science and information systems and marketing.

EXECUTIVE AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMS AND CONFERENCES

Thousands of business professionals each year attend CEPD conferences, forums and seminars that are open to the public for enrollment. Spears School faculty members and national industry experts continually develop and adapt programs to accommodate the ever-changing needs of state and regional businesses. Instructors also custom-design programs to meet the particular needs of organizations, including communication, customer service, employee development, leadership, project management and technical issues. Annual CEPD programs offered in cooperation with Spears School departments include Tulsa Business Forums, Executive Management Briefings, Women's Business Leadership Conference, Energy Conferences, Oil and Gas Accounting Conference, Accounting and Financial Reporting Conference, Executive Education Partnership Program, State Executive Development Program, Big Data Analytics Conference, and the Cyber Security Conference.
